

Dialogue: [episode 11]

May: The sunset is so pretty.

Nana: It's really beautiful.

Dean: The view here reminds me of my hometown. We have ferries and gorgeous sunsets too.

Nana: Oh, I'm starting to feel a little homesick. I used to take ferries with my parents when I was a little girl.

May: Oh, Nana....

Nana: Wow, listen. That music is so familiar.

Dean: This is a song we used to sing when we were kids.

Nana: This place is just like my hometown,. I'm sorry, I've been dreaming lately of my family and my hometown.

Dean: We've got to seize the moment and remember what we have right now. The day might come when we'll miss it here.

Nana: That's for sure. Everybody is so nice here.

Cooper: I think we need to learn to accept cultural differences before we can adapt to them. But accepting another culture doesn't mean that people have to hide their own cultures.

Nana: You're right. I'm trying not to use my mother tongue so that I can learn to speak Chinese better.

Dean: You'll feel much better if you can strike a balance between showing acceptance and not hiding yourself.

Cooper: I completely agree.

May: I agree with you. But studying in a different culture is really not easy.

Nana: Well, I think I'm doing okay. It's difficult, but not actually impossible.

Cooper: Oh, you poor thing. Look over here now!
